

Mark Dworkin, MD, MPHTM

Mark Dworkin, MD, MPHTM, is Associate Professor, Division of Epidemiology and Biostatistics at the University of Illinois at Chicago School of Public Health.

Dr. Dworkin is certified in internal medicine with a subspecialty in infectious diseases and is a member of the Infectious Diseases Society of America and is a fellow of the American College of Physicians (ACP). Dr. Dworkin has previously worked at the Center for Disease Control in the Division of HIV/AIDS Prevention and served as the State Epidemiologist for the Illinois Department of Public Health. He has authored or co-authored more than 50 published research articles.

Dr. Dworkin received his medical degree from Rush Medical College in Chicago, IL. He completed his master's degree at Tulane University in New Orleans, Louisiana. He received his undergraduate degree from The University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, Michigan. He was trained by the Centers for Disease Control's Epidemic Intelligence Service (EIS).

###