

Robert H. Hopkins, Jr., MD, FAAP, FACP

Robert H. Hopkins, Jr., MD, FAAP, FACP, is Associate Professor of Internal Medicine and Pediatrics and Director of the Internal Medicine-Pediatrics combined residency at the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences in Little Rock, Arkansas.

Dr. Hopkins currently serves as Governor of the Arkansas Chapter of the American College of Physicians (ACP). He has been involved in local and national efforts to improve preventive immunization through service on the Arkansas Department of Health Vaccine Medical Advisory Board, the ACP Adult Immunization Physician Advisory Board, and the Executive Committee of the National Influenza Vaccine Summit.

Dr. Hopkins is certified in internal medicine and pediatrics, and has authored or co-authored more than 20 published studies in a variety of medical topics, including, evidence-based medical education, adult and pediatric immunization and comprehensive primary care.

Dr. Hopkins received his medical degree from the Medical College of Georgia in Augusta, Georgia. He received his undergraduate degree from Davidson College in Davidson, North Carolina.

###