

Susan J. Rehm, MD

Susan J. Rehm, MD, an infectious diseases specialist, is medical director for the National Foundation for Infectious Diseases. Since 1983, Dr. Rehm has been a staff physician at the Cleveland Clinic in Cleveland, Ohio, where she serves as vice chair of the Clinic's Department of Infectious Disease and Executive Director of Physician Health.

Dr. Rehm is a Fellow of the Infectious Diseases Society of America and the American College of Physicians. She is a member of several professional societies, including the American College of Physician Executives, the American Society for Microbiology and the American Medical Association. Since 2002, she has been honored as one of the "Best Doctors in America." Dr. Rehm is a member of the faculty at the Cleveland Clinic Lerner College of Medicine of Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland. She has authored publications encompassing a variety of topics in infectious disease.

Dr. Rehm earned her medical degree with high distinction from the University of Nebraska College of Medicine in Omaha, Nebraska and received her undergraduate degree with high distinction from the University of Nebraska in Lincoln, Nebraska.